

Here's my favourite route when I'm in Amsterdam. Yes, I like my retailers like H&M, Mango and Vila, but what makes Amsterdam so different from, say, Rotterdam – which has a relative 'new' centre – are the 'Nine streets' in the Jordaan district. The shops there are very unique and authentic and they've got a lot of vintage, which I like because it's one of a kind and has a low impact on the environment.

It starts at Prinsengracht. You'll get there with tram 2, 13, 17 and 18. You have to stop at Westermarkt (at Westerkerk, near the Anne Frank museum). Good luck and have fun!
